He's a life long drug dealer. She's a regular customer who belongs to a rival Motorcycle Club. He rescues her from an abusive biker, she robs him, she overdoes, but will that change him?

Rex:

I keep it strictly business, I have no time for anyone's personal drama.

Take the bag, give me my money.

I don't know why I'm helping this girl, not like this the first time I've seen a biker beat on his old lady.

She's a customer of mine, but I doubt it would have hurt my pocket if I just stood by and watched.

As a matter of fact, she'll probably come to me for a bag as soon as she's done taking the beating.

But, here I am with a rival biker's old lady overdosing in my bed.

What the hell am I thinking?

Dani:

This is sure not the first time I'm getting punched in the face, and probably not the last.

I'm dazed, and all I can think of is getting my next hit and feeling this pain fade away.

When I come too, I see him, the one that can give me a hit, but he denies me my hit.

Instead he takes me back to his club, the minute he leaves me alone, I find some dope and take a hit.

I almost die.

I'm tired of this junkie life, but will my dealer help me turn it around?
