LIT, set in Urban Memphis, Tennessee, is a compelling, short fiction thriller. Charley Baxter adapts the protagonist and antagonist archetype as she sifts through a rebellious life she's created for herself. This new-found Queenpin is about to face some serious jail time, and the people she's surrounded by are not who they claim to be.

This twenty-six-year-old, million-dollar drug dealer, thought her life in the system was nearly over. Her love for books gave her the escape she needed to get the lifestyles she's always dreamed of. Charley's ability to glide poetry of the great writers before her, from her tongue, have only transcribed the life she will soon face. With retribution at the forefront of her mind, she's about to increase the stakes higher than ever before!
