What You Need to Know to Have a
French Conversation

INTRODUCTION

Back in the 19th century, it was considered a must for educated members of the upper classes of the Western world to have French as their second language. All cultured and moneyed young people were expected to have a working knowledge of this classic European language as it was considered to be the lingua franca of the Gilded Age.

The current century might be two centuries away from the glitz and glamour of the 19th century and while French is no longer as widely spoken or rarefied as it used to be, it still enjoys a certain level of prestige among those living in the 21st century. With the city of Paris being a reliable mainstay atop the list of the most visited places in the world, being able to hold a decent conversation in French is a skill that is valued among the world's most seasoned travelers.

As with any language, being fluent and perhaps even being highly conversant in French requires a certain amount of study and dedication. However, brushing up on the following phrases should still help you be able to carry a few brief but fairly impressive conversations in the said language should you find yourself in the so-called "City of Lights."

BASIC EXPRESSION

One of the fundamental things any aspiring saying, "I am enchanted to meet you." French speaker needs to be familiar with is how to make introductory conversations. Ca va? – This is an informal way of asking, "How are you?" Thus, it's better suited for some key phrases that would be handy in conversations where you are meeting family members or close friends. Someone for the first time are as follows:

Bonjour – This literally means "Good day" in French, but it is more commonly used as "Hello." It should be noted that "Bonsoir" ("Good evening") is more appropriate as a greeting if you are meeting someone at night.

Je m'appelle – This literally translates to "I am called," so if you wish to introduce yourself, you simply insert your name at the end of the phrase.

Comment vous appelez-vous? – In French, this translates to "How are you called?" but it serves as a way of asking for the other's person's name.

Enchante! – You usually say this phrase after someone is introduced to you and is a way of Comment allez-vous? – This is the formal counterpart of "How are you?" This is usually reserved for superiors, acquaintances, or strangers.

Tres bien, merci – This means "Very well, thank you" and is usually a response to the question "Ca va?" or "Comment allez-vous?"

Ou habitez-vous? – This means "Where do you live?"

Pardon? – If you need the other person to repeat what they said or if you didn't quite understand them, you can use this phrase.

Au revoir! – As the French counterpart of "goodbye," this is generally used to end a conversation.
